

GOOD CHANCE FOR COURSE.

Proposition Sent to Pastors to Get Members to Cooperate.

ONLY TEN DAYS TO DECIDE.

Option on Eight of Very Best Attractions Ever Here.

Two weeks since this paper announced that the board of tabernacle managers could not afford to put on a course of attractions for the coming winter months under existing conditions and would not attempt to until it was assured by the people of the city that they wanted them and were willing, without being called upon, to take a certain number of tickets at the usual price of $2 for the eight attractions (only 25 cts. each).

Since then there has been mailed to the ministers of the city by the secretary of the board another proposition, which, briefly stated, is that each church will agree to sell their proportion of the required number of tickets to avoid an actual loss of money. The societies of the churches or any members of the churches who will sell the tickets will be entitled to 10 per cent. of their sales up to the required amount and half of all sold above that. This proposition is really more than anybody could reasonably expect and is solely prompted by the desire of the board of managers to give the people something in the way of entertainment — something which they will sadly miss and which they will long for during the winter months if the proposition is disregarded.

The board believes that our people cannot afford to do away with a course of entertainments which they have enjoyed so many years at a mere nominal cost. They are not only entertaining but educational and uplifting—not for the young only, but for all.

The secretary of the board has an option on several lecturers, musicians and entertainers that are the equals of any that appear in the largest cities of this country, namely: The Floyds, The Gales, Bahe's Kaffir Boys' Choir, The Neapoltians, (ten musicians), The Schuberts, Sylvester A. Long, and Reno B. Welsbourn, or equally good attractions. But let it be remembered that the option on this talent expires within ten days, and if the people want to secure for another season something they really should not do without they must at once manifest that desire by coming to the aid of the board which stands ready to do its part in the premises. It is now up to them, not the board.

If the pastors and members of the churches are indifferent, the young people's societies of the different churches have a good opportunity to secure a nice little sum to go into their society treasury. Who will "get there first" is the thing now to be considered.

FREE MEET A SUCCESS

Flights Every Day In One of Judge C. O. Prowse's Biplane.

BY AVIATOR THOMPSON.
Four Passengers Taken Up The Last Day, One of Them Mayor Meacham.

In spite of the series of mishaps that disabled one machine altogether and made frequent repairs necessary on the other, the aviation meet given with Prowse biplanes by the business men of Hopkinsville, was completed Saturday afternoon with but slight changes in the three days' program. The first flights were made late in the afternoon Thursday, after a break in the engine of the passenger machine had been repaired after working on it all day. Two or three nice flights were made over the field by Aviator De Lloyd Thompson. In the last one another accident in alighting disabled the propeller, but the damage was promptly repaired and 2,000 people witnessed three successful flights Friday evening. In the last of these another break occurred in the same part that had been repaired, some bolts being broken off. These were replaced and the announcement was made that the machine would be ready for use again by four o'clock Saturday afternoon. Several thousand people were on hand for this program, but it was about five o'clock before the first flight was made. Mr. Thompson first made a straight flight the length of the big field and alighted at the south end rose again and flew to the starting point, clearing the ground probably fifty feet. Almost immediately he made the second flight, this time turning in the air at the south end and gradually rising to about 300 feet and after circling the field and a corn field to the west, alighted without mishap, but reported that there had been serious trouble in turning the machine due to a hitch of some kind in the rudder. This trouble was adjusted by Messrs. Stumpf and Shepherd and Prof. H. G. Brownell, who had been giving valuable assistance in repairing the various breaks. A third flight was then made. This time George Stumpf, the mechanic who helped Judge Prowse build the machine, being taken up as a passenger. This flight was the length of the field and return and was without mishap.

The fourth flight was made right away, Mayor Chas. M. Meacham taking Mr. Stumpf's place in the passenger's seat. About the same course was followed and the machine returned to the starting point after a pretty flight. On this trip there was a slight break in the wiring under the engine and there was a delay of an hour in fixing it. The crowd waited patiently, however hungry for more and about seven o'clock the fifth flight was made with Miss Johnson, a young woman of Chicago, who aspires to be an aviatrix, as the passenger. Upon returning Mrs. J. H. Whaley, of Memphis, a sister-in-law of Judge Prowse, was taken as a passenger, it then being almost to dark to see the machine. The machine did not work well on this flight and the biplane did not rise when it alighted to turn in the lower end of the field, until helpers were sent to start the propeller again, when it came back to the starting point.

In spite of the fact that the smaller machine, in which many successful flights have been made, was out of commission awaiting a vital part of the engine ordered from the factory several days ago, the meet was voted a complete success, the only change in the program being that the mayor's flight could not be made until the last day.

Everybody in Hopkinsville feels a personal pride in Judge Prowse's achievement in not only inventing, but constructing two aeroplanes of different types here in Hopkinsville that have made repeated successful flights. The smaller machine has the engine in front and the propeller behind the machine, while the larger one has the propeller in front, pulling instead of pushing. This is the type known as the tractor and the only one of this type ever reported as having been tried was a failure at Marblehead, Mass. Judge Prowse has demonstrated that this kind of a biplane is not only practicable, but that it possesses distinct advantages, particularly in the provision made for carrying passengers in an enclosed compartment in the very middle of the machine, where the danger of throwing it out of balance is greatly lessened.

Everyone is praising the skill and daring of the young aviator, De Lloyd Thompson. He is a big husky young fellow with a cool head and iron nerves and understands the science of aviation in all its details and his wonderful courage in operating an untried machine on a few hours' notice shows that he is a wizard of the air, fearless in the face of danger.

Three More Killed.

All records in aviation fatalities have been broken during the month of July, no less than 15 deaths resulting from the navigation of the air. At Munich, Germany, Aviator Fisher and his mechanician, Carl Johnson, were instantly killed by a fall Saturday and the same day at Canton, O., Thos. E. Flick was killed in a balloon ascension when his parachute failed to open.

More Graft Unearthed.

Detroit, Mich., July 26.—Eight aldermen and the secretary of the committee were arrested this afternoon on charges of accepting bribes and conspiracy to accept a bribe for their votes and influence in the passing of a measure affecting city property recently transferred to the Wabash Railroad. At least six other arrests of aldermen are expected at any moment and it is believed that $3,700 passed hands in sums of from $100 to $1,000. The bribery was consummated and the arrests accomplished under the personal supervision of Detective William J. Burns.

HANDSOME NEW CHURCH.

At Lafayette Dedicated Sunday By H. W. Elliott.

ABOUT $600 RAISED ON DEBT.

Many Hopkinsville People Drove Down and Helped Swell the Crowd.

Sunday was one of Lafayette's biggest days, the occasion being the dedication of the new Christian church. It is probable that the crowd exceeded anything known in the history of the place. They were there from far and near.

Many Hopkinsville people went down, among them Prof. A. C. Kuykendall and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Fowler and Miss Gussie Kuykendall, who did the singing. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. H. W. Elliott, of Trimble county.

The services were conducted by Rev. H. J. E. Stevens, who has been preaching to the new congregation for six months or more and has been untiring in his efforts in raising funds necessary to begin building and otherwise rushing plans to a consummation. Many of the ladies of the congregation assisted in every way possible and it was partly through their efforts that a congregation numbering only about thirty-five, but all enthusiastic and with a great object in view, succeeded in accomplishing where many would have failed.

When Sunday morning dawned the new house of worship had a debt of $1,000 resting upon it. During the day it had been agreed by the leading members of the church that this debt must be lifted and those present should be called upon to pledge themselves for what amount they felt able to pay. When the call for subscriptions was made there was a lively response, amounts being called out faster than the clerk could take them down. At the final round-up the announcement was made that about $600 had been subscribed. The announcement was received with manifest enthusiasm.

Died At Clarksville.

Both were middle aged negroes with large families. Herring was in the vicinity at noon yesterday, but had not given himself up. Sheriff Johnson went with a warrant of arrest yesterday afternoon.

OCTOBER 27

Set Apart As Tuberculosis Day.

Churches and religious societies, to the number of at least 100,000, will be urged to give special attention to the prevention of tuberculosis on Sunday, October 27th, or on some day during the week preceding or the week following that date. This season has been set apart and designated as the Third National Tuberculosis Day by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which makes this announcement today.

Tuberculosis Day was originally set on April 28th, but was postponed because of a conflict with Conservation Sunday of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which was held on that date. The observance of Tuberculosis Day in the fall this year will be utilized by anti-tuberculosis workers not only for the general education of churchgoers on consumption, but also for the purpose of interesting them in the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals.

Every one of the 600 and more anti-tuberculosis associations allied with the National Association, will be urged to promote Tuberculosis Day in their respective communities. While last year over 50,000 churches observed this occasion, it is expected this year that this number will be doubled. Millions of circulars and other forms of literature will be distributed. The support of every religious denomination will be asked for.

SHOULD BE SIMMERED

BOILING CHICKEN IS A GASTRONOMIC ERROR.

Fowl Always Should Be Rubbed With Lemon Before Cooking—Mistake to Salt the Water to Start With.

Our most scientific cooks say that the way to boil an egg is not to boil it. Paradoxically, we may say the same thing about a chicken, for the way to boil a chicken is not to boil it, but to simmer it.

In nine cases out of ten in cooking, the lesser fire does the better work, and this is especially true in the boiling of all meats. They must be boiled very, very slowly, which is the same thing as saying they must be simmered.

Any ancient bird can be simmered until the meat will part from the bones, but any young chicken can be boiled as tough as the proverbial old hen—the meat clinging to the bones and seeming to be all bone and tendon.

The best way to start the prepared chicken is to pour boiling water over it, let it boil up for a few brief minutes—five is usually about all it will stand—then lessen the fire. Skim and keep covered while cooking.

Do not salt the water to start with, as our old-fashioned recipes told us to do. Put the salt in when the chicken is half done. A good cook with the knack can do almost anything in this way, and spoil neither the broth nor the bouillabaisse, but there are others who must follow rules to the letter.

To insure greater tenderness, some cooks rub their boiling chicken with a lemon before putting it on to cook. Others put a tablespoon or two of vinegar into the water. Neither of these things do any harm, and either may lessen any rank quality present. But they are not absolutely necessary to the securing of a tender product.

Notice that it is the pot for boiling rather than the stewpan. There is just as much difference in the boiling of things in a thick iron pot, which holds the heat and distributes even gas heat, as between the thin bottomed frying pan and one thick bottomed. For very quick cooking the thin-bottomed frying pan is out of the question, as we know, because a meat will burn so quickly in it.

We have a greater number of uses for cold chicken in summer than in winter, and, by the way, it is generally better to let our chicken cool in the liquor in which it was cooked and stay in it until we are ready to use it.

If there is one thing more than another concerning which tastes differ, it is in the making of this salad. The amount of celery used varies from one-third as much as chicken to one and a half times as much celery as meat. Equal parts of chicken, celery and cabbage are sometimes used, and the dressings are legion, from the expensive mayonnaise to the inexpensive boiled dressings. The salad may also be garnished to suit the taste. Some of the older garnishes were boiled beets and hard boiled eggs, which a Japanese cook will turn into roses, tulips and some quite unidentifiable blossoms, plus checker work and various parquetry.

Washing Cretonne.

Bran water is excellent for washing cretonne, and this is the way to make it: Take one cupful of bran, put it into a saucepan and cover it with one quart of cold water, then bring it slowly to the boil. It should be left to simmer for half an hour, and then be strained through a piece of muslin, after which add another quart of water to make it lukewarm and also a little melted soap. Less soap is necessary than for ordinary water, as bran water has cleansing properties. It has also a stiffening power, and thus no starch is required to stiffen the majority of fabrics for which bran water is used.

Cantaloupe Bavarian Cream.

Cover one-half box of gelatine with one-half cup of cold water and let stand for one-half hour; dissolve over hot water. Whip one pint of cream to a stiff froth, turn into a basin, add one-half cup of pulverized sugar, a pinch of salt, a teaspoon vanilla, one tablespoon sherry and the gelatine. Stir from the bottom toward the top until it begins to foam a little, add 1/2 cup chopped candied fruit and continue stirring until the cream forms. Turn into a mold previously wet with cold water and stand away to harden. Serve with lady fingers

Entire Wheat Doughnuts.

One cup sugar, 2 1/2 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, entire wheat flour enough to roll. Cream butter, add sugar, eggs beaten until light and milk; then add 3 cups of entire wheat flour sifted with the baking powder, spices and salt. If necessary add more flour to stiffen the mixture to roll. Roll 1/4 inch thick, cut with doughnut cutter and fry in deep fat.

Restorative Jelly.

Put in a glass jar one-half box of gelatine, one tablespoon of granulated gum arabic, two cloves, three tablespoons sugar, two tablespoons lemon juice, one cup of port wine. Stand in a kettle of cold water, heat until all is dissolved; strain into a shallow dish, cool in one-half inch squares.

A MODERN ROMANCE

AND ITS HAPPY ENDING

Four hundred feet he had dropped, clean as a shot duck tumbling from the blue. As he landed, amid the crash of splintering planes and above the dull, sickening thud caused by the fall of his own body (which he heard quite clearly, by the way) he thought that a feminine scream rang out on the still June air.

Like nearly all fliers, Hubert Drayton was before anything else a gentleman. None the less, so great was the shock of his unexpected descent that for several minutes he lay still, without even seeking to offer an apology to the owner of the voice. He felt quite comfortable where he was, merely wondering in a vague way if he had dropped into a township where the laws against failing aviators were severe.

"Really," said a voice, and by its clear, ringing timbre Drayton recognized it for the same which had screamed a short time previous, "this is extremely embarrassing!"

Drayton roused from his reverie sufficiently to drag himself from beneath the wreck of a 200-horsepower engine and staggered to his feet. The fact that he turned immediately to the voice's owner clearly proves our contention that Drayton was before all else a gentleman. Otherwise his first natural concern must have been to overhaul the aeroplane. The vision which greeted him he found nearly as disconcerting as charming. He perceived that he and the unfortunate biplane had dropped upon the smooth sward at the edge of a wide sweep of open pastureland. Scattered painting utensils and a fallen easel showed the interrupted occupation of his victim, and the artist herself he beheld vainly struggling to disentangle her garments from a network of broken guide wires in which they had become caught.

Even in that moment Drayton perceived the inextinguishable charm which had for several seasons made Jane Ethylinda Brown an undoubted leader in New York's most exclusive circles—a charm which, though just now veiled by a certain hauteur engendered by her predicament, yet glowed all the warmer, like a vivid rose through a chilling veil of mist.

The aviator sprang to her assistance. Though they had never met, it was self-evident that no bar of class need intervene. Drayton concealed his chagrin beneath an incomparable sang froid.

"How very unfortunate!" he exclaimed, with just the proper shading of polite regret. "I am very much afraid that I have ruined your sketch."

While speaking he reduced the guide wires to submission, at the same time noting with relief that the lady's costume seemed not seriously damaged.

Her well-bred smile reassured him. "Oh, the sketch is of no consequence. At the worst, I can make another. But your machine?"

"It does look rather—er—mussed up, doesn't it?" Drayton surveyed the machine with a whimsical, comprehensive glance and turned from it with the laugh of the fatalist. "That's all in a day's flight, you know."

It was a perfect day in June. The birds sang amiably and the sky was entirely blue.

Presently said the lady: "But you really must not say such things to me. Aside from the fact that three hours since I had never seen you, I must make known to you a circumstance of which you are evidently unaware. I am already affianced to the Count de Chambre."

For a moment even Drayton's good breeding came near deserting him. Dumbly he stared at this girl of his dreams, unable to think of any suitable retort. All his life he had waited for this day—waited, scarcely understanding his own indifference where women were concerned, yet in his secret soul assured that in some hour and place, as yet unguessed, his dream lady would stand before him. The time had come. Here was the place, perfect in detail, even as it had flashed a hundred times before his sleeping vision. From the first moment he had not doubted.

And—she was affianced to the Count de Chambre!

Sadly Drayton turned away. I he could engage an automobile at some neighboring farm house he might be able to transport the remains of his biplane to its hangar. But for some reason he felt none of the old enthusiasm. The airship of his dreams lay shattered past all repair. What mattered else?

Perhaps the lady, too, had dreamed. Or, perhaps, the sight of that tall, graceful, manly figure awakened in her one of those sweet and sudden emotions to which romance owes her very being.

"Mr. Drayton," she murmured softly, "don't—don't go just yet!"

His heart leaped like that of a man reprieved. Wheeling about, their eyes met. What her gaze held for him may only be surmised from the fact that an instant later she was held unresisting in the strong clasp of his arms.

"Mees—Br-wown! Oh—Ethyleenda—do you not hear me call?"

"It is the Count de Chambre!" exclaimed the girl in consternation. "Oh, what will we tell him, Hubert!"

Before Drayton could reply the figure of a man emerged from the trees near by, paused for a moment, then with an inarticulate cry came bounding toward them. Drayton merely released one arm, holding his dream-girl closer with the other. But, to the surprise of both, the count dashed past them unheeding, and flinging himself upon the twisted framework of the biplane, seemed, with extraordinary energy, to be trying to drag it from the object underneath. "Ethyleenda! Ethyleenda!" he shrieked again and again. And,

Sadly, Drayton Turned Away.

"Oh, you murderer—you careless mur-r-r-erer! It is true then! My golden Ethyleenda is cr-r-r-ushed!"

So frantic were the count's efforts that he actually dragged the heavy machine a little to one side. With a sudden, curious premonition, Drayton pushed the girl gently behind him, and moving forward, peered beneath the wreck. What he saw caused him to catch his breath a little. Then, with the splendid calmness of our Anglo-Saxon race, he returned smiling to the girl's side and took her hand in his.

"Don't you understand, dear?" he said softly. "It was to be—our two souls were to be united, at whatever cost. This was the only way. It is not strange that we knew our love so quickly—we were both killed instantly when my biplane fell, three hours ago!"

There are many golden beauties in Newport-by-the-Sea. Presumably the count might find consolation. At any rate, without a shadow of regret, Hubert Drayton and Jane Ethylinda Brown left him beside the wrecked machine and, secure in the companionship of perfect love, drifted forth together across the sunlit pasture lands.

BED-RIDDEN WOMAN SAVED LIFE.

A bed-ridden woman living in Los Angeles, Cal., a few days ago rescued a little child from burning to death. The little girl had picked up a lighted cigar stump, thrust it into her pocket and the next instant her dress was in flames. Across the street, where the woman lay ill, she heard the screams of the child, and, throwing a light bathrobe about her, rushed to the little one's side and smothered the flames. She then carried the child into her home and summoned an ambulance, which took the little girl to the receiving hospital. The rescuer returned to her bed, apparently suffering little from her experience.

RESULTS TELL.

There Can Be No Doubt About the Results in Hopkinsville.

Results tell the tale.

All doubt is removed.

The testimony of a Hopkinsville citizen can be easily investigated. What better proof can be had?

Mrs. J. E. O'Daniel, 603 O'Neal street, Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for they have done me a great deal of good, whenever I have had occasion to use them. For some time I had suffered from pains in my back and sides and other troubles, arising from weak kidneys. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the papers, I got a box and used them as directed. They quickly cured me and I know they are the best kidney remedy to be had. I always advise friends and acquaintances to give them a trial."

Aid for the Invalid.

A stick of the right sort will help an invalid in many ways. It should be strong, yet light, with a stout iron hook on one end and a knob on the other. This will enable an invalid to adjust curtains, raise and lower shades and windows, push her rolling chair or move a screen, and aid herself in a variety of other ways.

Most disfiguring skin eruptions, scrofula, pimples, rashes, etc., are due to impure blood. Burdock Bitter as a cleansing blood tonic, is well recommended. $1.00 at all stores.

Trouble With Ladies' Watches.

"We always have a vast deal more trouble with women than with men about the watches they carry," said a jeweler. "No matter how expensive a lady's watch or how correctly made it seems to need regulation and repair about twice as often as a man's watch. Of course most women forget to wind their watches, but aside from that they wear them so irregularly that the watch has the same environment about three days in seven."

One way to relieve habitual constipation is to take regularly a mild laxative. Doan's Regulets are recommended for this purpose. 25c a box at all drug stores.

LOW CALCIUM TREATMENT.

The Italians resort to a very simple method when they wish to obliterate the injurious effects of salt air and sunshine after a visit to their villas, the shore of the Adriatic, the Tyrrhenian sea or the lakes. They bathe the face with the white of an egg, well beaten, let it dry on the skin and rinse it off in soft water after fifteen minutes. The treatment is repeated three or four times, and always at night just before retiring.

Itching piles provoke profanity, but profanity won't remove them. Doan's Ointment is recommended for itching, bleeding or protruding piles. 50c at any drug store.

Error Always a Harm.

To free a man from error is to give, not to take away. Knowledge that a thing is false is a truth. Error always does harm; sooner or later it will bring mischief to the man who harbors it.—Schopenhauer.

CHUTE TO CLEAN POTATOES

Slats Arranged, as Shown in Illustration, Allows All Dirt to Fall Through to Ground.

The ordinary box form used for conveying potatoes to the bins in cellar usually allows all the dirt upon same to go down with the tubers in the bin. This can be avoided if the bottom of the chute is made of slats, as shown in illustration, which permits all the dirt to fall through the openings upon the ground, as well as any pebbles that are picked up with the potatoes. The slats may be placed at a distance of one inch or one and one-half inches apart and this will also act as a sort of the potatoes, as well; the small potatoes falling through the openings between the slats with the dirt, etc., then with a second chute tubers can be conveyed to a separate bin, with the dirt falling to the ground, says the Iowa Homestead. This would save much labor, as the crop can be picked up as they come from the digger without the trouble of sorting, as when they are put in the cellar the sorting would be accomplished far easier and quicker by the above method.

HIGH VALUE OF GOOD ROADS

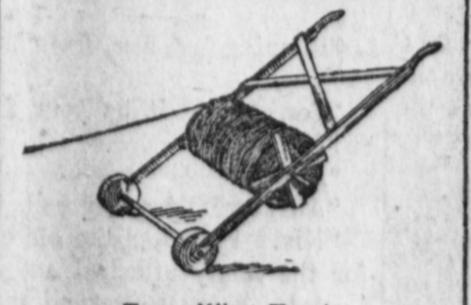

Big Point in Favor of Construction is Economy of Time and Force in Reaching Market.

No one questions the statement that good roads have a high money value to the farmers of the nation, and it may be said that this alone is sufficient to justify the cost of their construction as rapidly as practicable under an efficient, economical and equitable system of highway improvement. The big point in favor of this expenditure is the economy of time and force in transportation between farm and market, enabling the growers to take advantage of fluctuations in buying and selling, as well as enhancing the value of real estate. It is estimated that the average annual loss from poor roads is 76 cents an acre, while the estimated average increase resulting from improving all the public roads is $9. The losses in five years would aggregate $2,432 for every section of land, or more than enough to improve two miles of public highway. The necessity of good roads is obvious, as it would enhance the value of each section of land about $5,760, or more than double the estimated cost of two miles of improved highway, which constitutes the quota for 640 acres of land.

Quantity of Lime Needed.

The quantity of lime needed under different conditions varies from a few hundred pounds to several tons; but an average of about one ton of good lime to the acre will usually be sufficient. If grades of lime are used which contain 50 per cent or less of calcium oxide larger quantities will be required.

Smaller applications—perhaps 300 to 600 pounds—once in two to four years—will be preferable to very heavy applications at longer intervals; and if the basic slag be freely used as a source of phosphoric acid, it is probable that a second application of lime will, in most cases, be necessary.

CURIOSITY RAMPANT

While a Mighty Struggle For Pennies Advertises a Big Clothing House.

It's a hard guess as to whether curiosity or a desire to get something without cost is strongest in humanity. No matter which it may be, they both had a fair test last week, a week of events in ever-busy Hopkinsville. Many thousands of people stood in the sun for hours waiting to see an airship fly. That was curiosity, and who could blame them? But it wasn't new to everybody.

The next "attraction" was at Main and Seventh streets Saturday afternoon. Up in the third story of Wall & McGowan's James Wootton and Emmett Jones had been stationed, each with a pocket full of pennies, around a trunk that was said to be unbreakable, and the person holding the number corresponding to the one in the trunk which was to be taken out after the trunk had been thrown down to the concrete sidewalk, was to be the trunk's owner. In the scramble for the coppers which the two young men so generously threw into the crowd below boys and men, black and white, they got as badly mixed up as a dish of well scrambled eggs. That was a desire to get money for nothing, a terrible "failing" of mankind today.

But the magnet that drew the crowd was one of the modern wonders of the world--trunk that bids defiance to the most expert baggage-smasher on any railroad--East, West, North or South. That trunk was what everyone in the crowd wanted, and there they stood, guying the boys throwing away pennies (not their own) as if they grew on trees, each hoping when the lucky number was called that he would have the duplicate in his pocket. That was believing in luck. Solomon, wise as he was in his generation, didn't know it all, for he had never seen a trunk that a baggage-smasher couldn't ruin at his first effort. There is "something new under the sun." It may not be the airship, but it is an unbreakable trunk, and Wall & McGowan are authority for the statement and their demonstration proves it.

PROFITS OF NOVEL WRITING

READS LESSON TO MOTHERS
Decision Made by Supreme Court Justice in Brooklyn Something of a Warning.

Statements that have been published in connection with the administration of the estate of the late David Graham Phillips, the novelist, who was killed a year ago by a man who had conceived that one of Phillips' stories was a personal reflection upon his family, throw some light upon the earnings of modern fiction writers. Phillips was one of the most popular of the present school of novelists. His books commanded an immediate market, and were frequently among the "six best sellers" — that much-desired classification representative of the public taste. Nevertheless, they did not make him wealthy. His sister, who is his sole heir, will probably receive not more than $13,000 in royalties from the publishers. The story that was published immediately after the death of the writer gained a large sale, owing to the circumstances of its appearance, and netted $8,259.02, being the leader of the entire list. The royalties now due on others range down to $13.62. These figures, it must be remembered, represent royalties due now and do not disclose the total earnings of the books, save in the case of the posthumous novel. The writer, it appears, lived up to his income, and depended upon his new productions to provide him with funds for his necessities. Some novelists have accumulated fortunes by putting away their royalties over and above the actual needs of existence on a moderate scale, but these have been exceptional cases.—Washington Star.

"If a woman brings up her son in idleness with the idea that he is to inherit something, what the mother is worth is clearly admissible in determining what alimony the son shall pay."

SIMPLY DON'T MAKE IT PUBLIC

Most Men Travel Under Their Wives' Management, but the Facts are Kept Concealed.

Dr. Thomas W. Brophy of Chicago, who claims that American motherhood is the highest type in the world, was asked if this was not partly due to the unusual amount of responsibility the American husband allows his wife in family affairs.

"Quite true," Dr. Brophy replied. "The confidence her husband places in her makes the American mother capable and self-reliant. The mother's share in a family's success or failure is a large one—much larger, indeed, than most men will acknowledge."

"I see by the papers," a friend once said to me, "that Footlights is traveling under his wife's management."

"So do most men," I replied, "but they don't advertise it."

DANGEROUS BARGAIN DAYS.

I think that bargain days are becoming more and more dangerous, writes a New York city woman. I went to a hat sale recently. There were moments when I thought I had broken my neck, not to mention an arm and a leg or two. At last I escaped with a hat and struggled through to a clerk. I asked her to give me a mirror.

"Mirror, madam?" said she. "We never have mirrors on sale days. We let them break the furniture, but we draw the line at the mirrors. We're superstitious about broken mirrors."

ADVANTAGE OF LIBRARIES.

Miss Caroline Hewins, librarian of the Hartford public library, says that there are only fifteen states in the Union that have no library commissions. She cites the state of North Carolina as an illustration of the advantage of libraries. Eighty-two per cent of the population is in the country. Seventy-seven federated women's clubs in the state assist with funds and there are eighty study libraries; the largest, at Raleigh, has 11,000 volumes and an income of $3,000.

SIMPLE, ONCE YOU KNOW.

"How do you manage to keep your cook, Mrs. Enfield? You have had the present one several years, haven't you?"

"Yes, Mary has been with us ever since we began housekeeping. I find it easy enough to keep her. Whenever any of our neighbors offers her a dollar a week more than I'm paying her I give her a raise of a dollar and a half. It's very simple."

RECENT ACQUISITION.

"What is that awful knob on your forehead?"

"That is my bump of adversity."

"Bump of adversity? That's a new one on me."

"It's a new one on me, too. I got it this afternoon when my head came in contact with a beam in the cellar."

INSIDIOUS SCORN.

"Are you really looking for an honest man?" asked the suspicious citizen.

"No," replied Diogenes. "Confidentially, I am merely taking this method of letting my neighbors know what I think of them."

POOR ROADS ARE EXPENSIVE

Only 7 Per Cent of 2,100,000 Miles of Public Thoroughfares in This Country Are Improved.

There are 2,100,000 miles of public roads in this country. Only 150,000 miles, or 7 per cent, are improved. All the rest can be fairly described as bad roads. The waste of our natural resources, reckless as it is, is nothing compared to the money waste brought about by this condition of our highways.

It costs the French peasant an average of 12 cents a mile per ton to haul his produce to market. It costs the American farmer an average of 25 cents a mile per ton, or 100 per cent more than the Frenchman. During the year 1905-1906 hauling of farm produce to shipping points amounted to between forty and forty-five million tons weight. The average haul was 9.4 miles. If the farmers could have done their hauling over French roads, instead of their own inferior ones, they would have netted $58,000,000 more on their crops.

But all the hauling to shipping points is not done by farmers by any means. The Interstate commerce commission tells us that in all something like 250,000,000 tons are hauled for shipment every year. The willingness to move this immense volume of freight over poor roads, as against good roads such as France enjoys, costs the country a cool unnecessary $305,000,000 a year.

These figures and facts come from the office of Logan Waller Page, the United States director of public works.

USEFUL AS GRASS CATCHER

Device Fastened to Back of Mower Makes Use of Rake Unnecessary —How It Is Made.

A rake will be unnecessary to the man who mows grass with the device shown here attached to the back of the mower. This is the invention of a Minnesota genius, and it is said to leave a clean sward in the wake of the lawn mower, catching the loose grass that flies up in the rear before it has a chance to fall again. The apparatus is made with a galvanized steel bottom and heavy duck sides and is easily detached and emptied when it becomes full. Two hooks are fastened at the ends of the roller of the mower and circular wire pieces fit over these at each end of the catcher. A third piece of wire hooks over the handle of the mower to keep the scoop in position. Another wire contrivance comes with this device by means of which the catcher can be made wider or narrower or in some other way adapted to the size of the mower.

Handy Grass Catcher.

Manure and Silage Corn.

Twenty tons of corn silage an acre were harvested last fall by George L. Hyslop of Ohio. He uses it for fattening cattle and hogs. The most interesting thing about this yield is that it is the result of proper utilization of barnyard manure. The manure shed has an important place on the farm.

Good Roads & Farm Notes

Reading good farm papers will interest people in better farm conditions.

Fall plowing of field areas will often be of service in controlling cut worms that are affecting field crops.

Rotation allows or assists Nature to repair her waste places and incidentally facilitates the war with weeds.

Different crops for different years on the same soil will produce the variety of elements which insure fertility.

The grain grower should have the cows freshen in the fall, in order to provide an income while the fields are idle.

A border of nasturtiums or some of the late foliage plants all around the vegetable garden produces a fine effect.

Do not be afraid to apply air-slaked lime to the cabbages with a blow gun. It will destroy the worms on the head of the cabbage.

A garden cultivator does much better work than a hoe. It is easier, quicker and keeps the soil in much better conditions.

We cannot bring rain when it is needed, but we can keep the cultivators going during the worst drought that ever happened.

CLEAN SKIN OF MUCH VALUE

If Pores Are Kept Open Cow Is More Apt to Be Healthy—Use Comb and Brush Every Day.

Nature has given all living creatures a wonderful covering for the body. The skin is a most perfect and yet an exceedingly simple system of carrying off impurity and at the same time of providing the body with needed nourishment from the air, through the mysterious channels of absorption.

Every cow's body is completely covered with this network of cells. If these are kept clean and open, so that they may do their work, the cow will be more apt to be healthy than if they become closed. This has been most strikingly proven by covering the bodies of animals with a sort of varnish which will not admit air, and the poor creatures soon die, their heart and lungs being fairly engorged with blood, just as would be the case if they were smothered.

Do we need anything more to prove that it stands us in hand to keep the bodies of our cattle clean by the use of a brush and comb not now and then, but every day, regularly? If this is not done, the pores of the skin get closed with the dust which is always present in our stables, especially at this time of the year, when we are feeding hay and other food that is apt to fill the air with flying particles. At once the cow begins to suffer. She cannot digest her food as she would otherwise, and she requires more food and richer food to maintain life in a good degree.

POINTS IN CARING FOR MILK

Liquid Placed in a Clean Bottle Is Practically Free From Outside Contamination.

The nine rules given below will prove of considerable value to any dairyman:

1. Bottle milk is practically free from outside contamination and is the preferable form for purchasing it.

2. Can milk is liable to contamination from dust, from heat, and from strong-smelling substances in the refrigerator.

3. The top and outside of the bottle should be rinsed off with warm water before being opened, as the milkman usually carries the bottles by the top or neck, and more or less dirt and bacteria are certain to be transferred to the outside of the bottles.

Simple Method of Cooling.

4. Place the milk at once in a refrigerator, in cold water or in a cellar. Keep the covers on the bottles as it prevents material falling in, and also prevents absorption of odors.

5. Wash and scald the bottle as soon as empty.

6. Clean vessels only should be used for holding milk sold by measure. These should have tight-fitting covers.

7. Never mix fresh and stale milk, as all becomes tainted or sour in a short time.

8. Milk slightly sour can be sweetened by the addition of a small amount of lime water. Pasteurization will add to its keeping quality. This latter is not good policy, but is a remedy for a common evil.

9. Do not buy milk because it is cheap, for usually it is the dearest in the end.

An old stagnant pond is no place for a cow to slake her thirst.

Cows differ somewhat in the amount of roughage they will take.

Every dairy farmer should organize a cow-testing association of his own.

A "boarder" in the dairy herd is a sign of an owner who is satisfied with life as it is.

The mangal is excellent for stock feed, being greatly relished by milk cows in winter.

When butter refuses to "gather" the cream may be too sour or the temperature too low.

Provided your cow is a good one, the more she is fed along right lines the more she will give.

Stringy milk is brought on by a fermentation in the udder caused by a certain form of bacteria.

Milk left in the pail of the skim-milk calf means sour milk in a very short time these hot days.

To be sweet and clean it is desirable that the cow stable be whitewashed at least twice a year.

The best cow is the one that can consume the largest amount of roughage and use it to the best advantage.

The number of acres required to feed a herd of twenty cows in full milk will depend largely upon the condition of the ground and the sea-

QUARTET OF OLD FAVORITES

These Plantation Recipes Long Have Had the Indorsement of Housewives.

Never Fall Lemon Pie.—For two pies, heaping cupful of sugar, heaping tablespoon of cornstarch, 1 1/2 cupfuls of boiling water, juice and grated rind of lemon, beaten yolks of four eggs, lump of butter the size of a walnut. For the meringue use the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs with four tablespoons of sugar and a dash of flavoring.

Blue Ribbon Sponge Cake.—Have all ingredients ready before starting as delay is ruinous to sponge cake. Remember that everything depends on the mixing. Beat whites of four eggs till quite smooth; add beaten yolks, fold in two cups of sugar, three cooking spoonfuls of water and lastly two level cups of flour with three level teaspoons of baking powder. Bake in a moderate oven.

White Fruit Cake.—Cup of butter, two cups of sugar, cup of sweet milk, 2 1/2 cups of flour, whites of seven eggs, two level teaspoons of baking powder, pound each of raisins, figs, almonds, half pound citron sliced thin, teaspoon lemon extract, cup grated coconut. Bake two hours in a slow oven.

Spanish Salad.—Cut the contents of can of pimientos in long strips. With scissors cut fine the tender part of a stalk of celery and strip cup of olives from seeds. Serve with oil mayonnaise on crisp lettuce leaves.

VERY FINE LUNCHEON SALAD

Combination Both Appetizing and Nutritious, of Fruit, Vegetables, Eggs and Cheese.

As there is no dish more appetizing than salad for an afternoon luncheon, the following recipe may be gladly followed by girls when making up a luncheon menu. Take one ripe, juicy orange; one large, ripe banana; one mellow, yellow apple; one mellow pear; three large, perfect figs; one white, crisp stalk of young celery; a medium-sized piece of American cheese (must be old and crumbling), two hard-boiled eggs. Cut each into small pieces, grating the cheese. When all have been well mixed together with a wooden spoon in a wooden bowl, pour over the whole the juice of two lemons, twine the quantity of olive oil, a bit of mustard and salt, which have been beaten together till thick. Put into a mason jar, cover tightly and place in the ice box. When thoroughly chilled, put two spoonfuls upon a crisp white lettuce leaf on a small salad plate and serve with thin slices of bread and butter. This, with a cup of rich chocolate, makes an appetizing combination for luncheon. It may be followed by an ice or whipped cream and sponge cake.

DO YOU KNOW?

That you should never use soda for washing enamel pans. A little salt or fine ash applied with a soft cloth will remove all stains, and the pan should be thoroughly rinsed afterward with warm water.

That to keep the coffee pot sweet and clean you should put a tablespoon of carbonate of soda into it, fill it nearly full of water and let it boil for a little while. Then rinse very thoroughly with several lots of warm water. If this is done once a week the pot will always be fresh and nice.

That if all dish cloths and tea cloths are soaped and well rinsed out every time they are used they will be no trouble at all to keep clean. It is much wiser to have three or four cloths in use than one or two stained and greasy ones.

That dishes in which flour and eggs have been mixed can be quite easily cleaned if they are allowed to stand in cold water for a few minutes before washing. Hot water only hardens the mixture and makes it very difficult to remove.

LIGHT BREAD.

Save a piece of dough about the size of a teacup. Set it away till you get ready to bake next time, then break it up in one quart warm water, add one-half cake of yeast foam; let stand one-half day, then mash four boiled potatoes in the evening, add potatoes to potato water; mix them with yeast and dough; add one-half cup of sugar, one heaping tablespoon of salt and enough flour to make a thick paste; let stand till morning, then add one quart warm water, mix stiff as you can. Let rise twice, mix out in loaves, let rise. Then bake. This makes six loaves.

Anything Funny About Political Convention Crowd.

"Sam" Blythe, whose josh stories about politicians and things political are well known, arrived in Chicago to "do" the Republican convention. Immaculately clad in a light gray suit, with a hat and cane to match, the gray-haired young man made an interesting figure in the lobby of the Congress hotel. And he seemed to know everybody on the floor.

He was approached by a younger newspaper man, who stood somewhat in awe of the older man's prominence, and addressed as follows:

"How are you, Mr. Blythe?"

"Hello," said Blythe.

"You are Mr. Blythe, aren't you?"

"I sure are!"

"Well, I'm Blank of the Yankee Doodle and I've got a column of funny stuff to write and I want you to tell me a funny story about some of this gang."

"Son," quoth Blythe seriously, "if you can find anything funny in this sad outfit you're pretty good!"—Chicago News.

UNNEEDED NERVOUSNESS.

The customs officials at Leith, Ireland, seized, several weeks ago, several cases of rifles shipped from Germany, scenting insurrection in the threats of some men in Ulster to resist home rule by force of arms, if they couldn't defeat it any other way. Things looked ominous from another direction for the peace of the British empire. After several weeks of nervousness, during which the rifles reposed peacefully in the customs storehouse, it developed that they had been shipped to a theatrical company, which intended to send instructions as to their destination, but which, like many another theatrical company, had ceased to tour after being on the move for some weeks. Then everybody breathed easier, and perhaps smiled when nobody was looking.

CAT COMMITS SUICIDE.

Despondent because her four children were taken away from her, "Spots," the pet mascot and station house cat at the Penn avenue police station, committed suicide yesterday by leaping in front of a street car. The kittens had been taken away one by one, and the old cat wandered about day and night in a melancholy mood. Yesterday she ran to the street car track. A car was approaching, but the motorman stopped in time to avoid killing "Spots." The cat was chased back, but later jumped under the wheels of a car. Philadelphia Record.

M. A. IN EITHER CASE.

Elsie Janis, the talented young actress, was urging a friend, one evening at a roof-garden supper in New York, to remain another year at college before marrying the young man to whom she was engaged.

"You will always regret," urged Miss Janis, "that you left college before getting your degree."

"Oh, well," her friend answered mischievously, "maybe I'll soon be a M.A. anyhow."

PAYS TRIBUTE TO VETERANS.

Mrs. Carrie Feldkamp is an old lady at Corryville, a suburb of Cincinnati, who makes it a point to place a flag upon the breast of every veteran who dies. Her husband and two brothers were in the war, and she says they told her of so many kindnesses done to them that she tries to repay the obligation with this little tribute to the dead.

Woman Past Held.

Chandler, Okla.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Ella Flowers says: "I hardly know how to thank you for the good that Cardui has done me. Before I tried Cardui, I thought I was past help, but after taking it I was relieved at once, and gained at least 10 pounds. Every day I feel so much better. I am still improving greatly." Many women are completely worn out and discouraged on account of womanly weakness. Are you? Have you not tried Cardui? It only needs a few doses to convince you that Cardui is just what you need. Try it today. It will cure your pains.

Gray-Haired Carpenter Receives Old Legacy Created to Give Him College Education.

To return to Tennessee at the age of fifty-seven and take advantage of a legacy created for the purpose of affording him a college education when he attained his majority, which has remained unused by him, is the intention of an Oklahoma carpenter. The man, now a gray-haired, robust grandfather, intends to return to his native state, enter Vanderbilt university at Nashville and begin a three-year course in accordance with the plans of his benefactors prescribed nearly forty years ago. Early in 1873 the Methodists in his home town created a fund for his education, their expectation evidently being that he would enter the ministry. They subscribed a fund of $400 for the purpose of assisting the young man in securing a one-year course in English and a two-year course in theology. The legacy has now grown to $1,200. The beneficiary has nine children, four of them grown and married, while his youngest will soon be ten. The father said he willingly would give the advantage of the schooling to one of his children, but the provisions of the gift forbid.

NOTED AUTHOR, BUT INSANE

Alexander Cruden, Who Compiled Famous Concordance, Was in the Madhouse Several Times.

Alexander Cruden, author of "Cruden's Concordance of the Holy Scriptures," was born at Aberdeen in 1701, was educated at Marischal college, where he took his M. A. He developed symptoms of insanity, however, and was placed in confinement. On his release he left Aberdeen and for ten years was a tutor, finally in 1732 setting himself up as a bookseller in London. In 1737 he published his Concordance, dedicated to Queen Caroline, who promised to "remember him." The queen died a few days later, however, and Cruden soon relapsed into insanity, and for ten weeks was confined to a madhouse. He suffered another serious mental relapse in 1753. His later years he spent going up and down the country reproving by voice and pen the nation's sins of Sabbath breaking and profanity. He was just about to visit his native city when he died at his prayers in his lodgings at Islington, November 1, 1770.

MAKING A HOME.

"Don't you think you two'd better take these children and make a home for them?" a local humane officer inquired of a young father and mother who were suddenly brought together in the juvenile court room at the minute the disappointed husband was about to permit a state society to adopt his two little people. In the suggestion lies great wisdom. Winning a home is one thing, keeping it is another, while making a home is yet a third proposition. Making a home is the business of marriage, and a sad number of persons miss the important point.—Los Angeles Times.

THE OLD SQUABBLE.

"I might have married a millionaire," declared Everywoman.

"One of my schoolmates is now one."

"And several of your schoolmates are working right in this town for ten a week," retorted Everyman.

"while one of them is in jail. I guess in marrying a chap getting $1,500 a year your average is fairly good."

And then Everybaby set up a howl and they had to stop quarreling and go attend to him.

SUPREME CONFIDENCE.

"Billinger seems to have great confidence in his wife."

"Yes, it's really extraordinary. He would even be willing to stay in the yard while she was manipulating the hose."

A QUITTER.

The young man wanted an understanding before he proposed.

"Can you wash dishes?" he asked.

"Oh, yes," said the girl. "Can you wipe 'em?"

He didn't propose.

MUST BE BORING.

He—Yes, my wife's away from home and I'm on my own society.

She—Dear me! How ever can you stand it?

KITTY MEWS

Langdon proved to be very unsatisfactory as a manager and unreliable in his own fielding at first base. He was let out none too soon.

An offer made by Atlanta of the Southern league, of $800 for Pitcher Lyman Johnson and Outfielder Mike Lyons, was accepted yesterday by the Hopkinsville club. The men are to be delivered at once, and will probably report to Atlanta today. Johnson is one of the best pitchers in this league and Lyons is a fast fielder and one of the heaviest hitters. Both men are expected to make good. Their withdrawal at this time greatly weakens the Hopkinsville team.
